PRESS

"Horror is at its best when it's relentless. Clive Barker knows this, and his debut feature as director is so gleefully vicious, so relentlessly grim that it's going to be very hard for fans of the genre not to like it"

—William Thomas, Empire Magazine

"Utterly bizarre and entirely ridiculous - and yet effective, an imaginative guignol festival, like the goriest of soap operas, in which one wrong move opens a portal to hell"

—Peter Bradshaw, Guardian

"Barker's vision cribs equally from the mythos of vampires and zombies, but Hellraiser... (the movie) is at least unwittingly a product of the AIDS crisis"

—Eric Henderson, Slant Magazine

"Barker's dazzling debut as a director creates such an atmosphere of dread that the astonishing visual set pieces simply detonate in a chain reaction of cumulative intensity"

—Derek Adams, Time Out
